

103d Infantry Division marching without weapons after the war in Innsbruck.

After the war in Innsbruck, June 1945.

Innsbruck, June 1945, Loden jackets and Lederhosen.

3d Battalion, 409th moved to Schwaz, Austria. Here the Red Cross serves donuts and coffee out of a Lunch Ration Pork C Ration crate.

Coffee out of real ceramic cups. This was a first in months. Also, for many in the 3d Battalion, it was their very first encounter with the Red Cross.

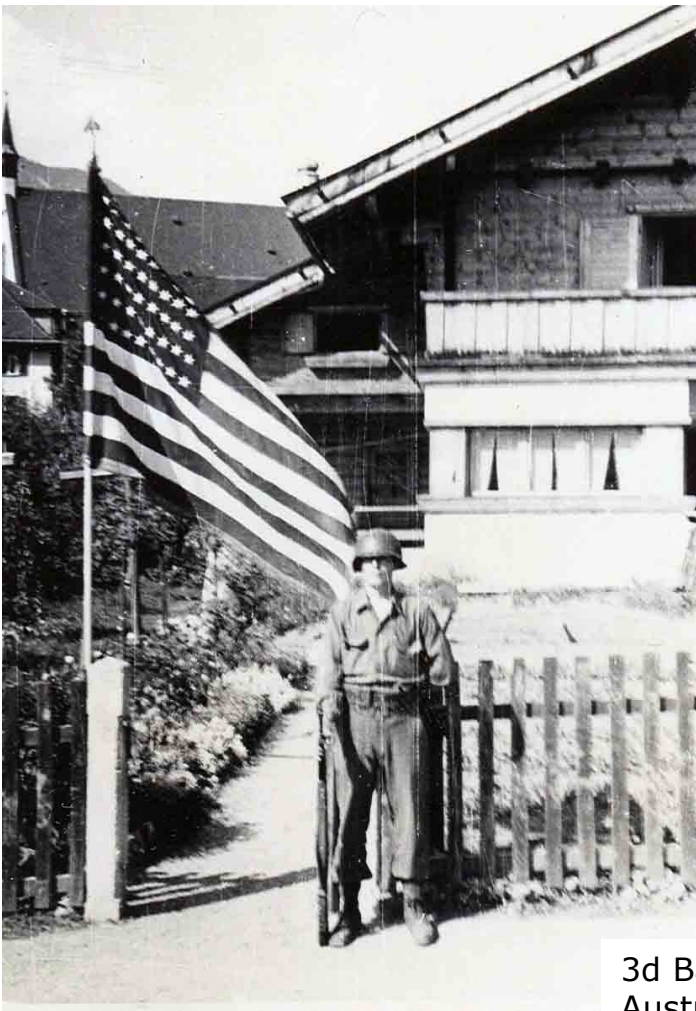

"Visit the South Sea for Free Pay. See your CO" Was this the poster for the next deployment?

GIs in a boat on the Zee. All rifles were gathered from the locals, then stacked and burned. After burning the barrels were bent and the rifles taken out into the Achen Zee and dropped overboard.

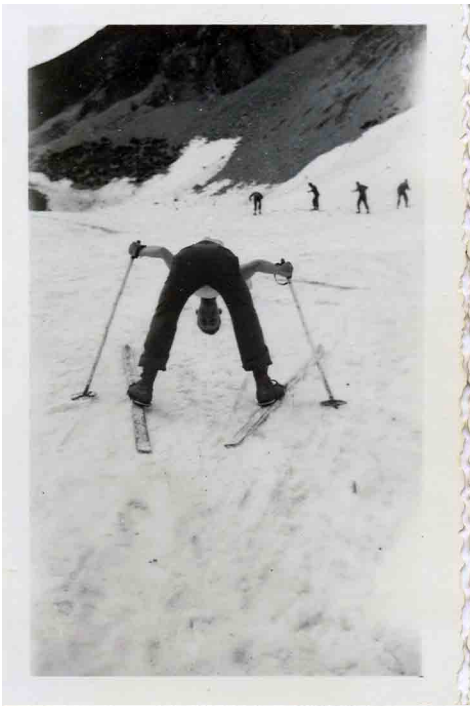

Scenes from around the Achen Zee. Sorry there was no color film available, the pictures would have been beautiful!

The Gondola went to the top of the Hafelekargipfel Mountain, high above Innsbruck.

GI ingenuity! There were some "borrowed" skis, some of them from German ski troops.

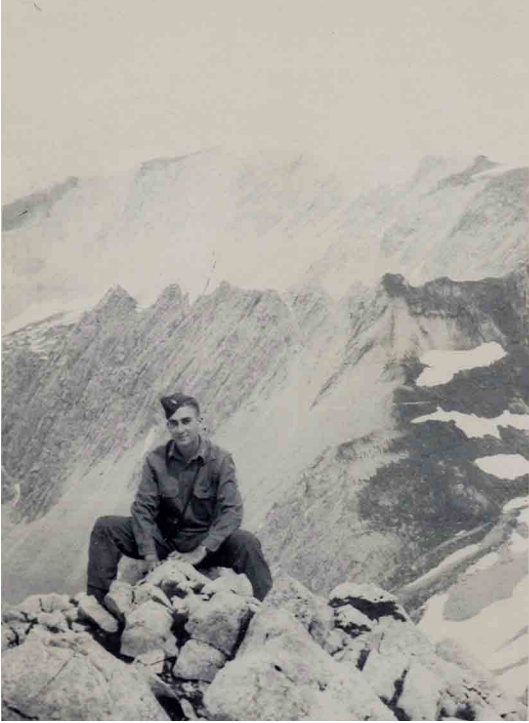

LT Flynn looks to see where he's been, and then where he's about to go – which is down!

None of the men had ever skied before. It was very steep and exciting and the summer snow was not too fast. This probably saved all from calamity. Later it was learned this was an old Olympic ski run. Many returned years later and could not believe they had ventured down these slopes!
